

GARAGE MEN OF
2 COUNTIES FORM
ORGANIZATION

More Than 100 Dealers and Garage Owners To Adopt Code

ELECT OFFICERS, TOO
Meeting Held in Lansdale to Perfect the Organization

LANSDALE, Aug. 11.—Garage men of two counties met here to form an organization and to create a new code. More than 100 car dealers and garage owners of the North Penn and vicinity formed the Bucks-Montgomery Automotive Association on Wednesday night.

H. Stewart Hiner, who is also president of the Lansdale Auto Trade Association, was unanimously elected to head the new organization, which is set up solely for the purpose of endorsing and enforcing a code. The Auto Trade Association will continue to operate, independent of the new group.

Others elected to office were: Charles Radcliff, Doylestown, first vice president; Herbert Kuhn, Telford, second vice president; William Shelly, Quakertown, third vice president; Fred Cressman, Souderton, secretary, and Lester H. Freed, Lansdale, treasurer.

No code has as yet been approved for the automobile men, and the dealers and garage owners are taking steps to draw up their own code, for recommendation to the authorities at Washington, as is permitted in the National Recovery Act.

Tentative codes have been drawn up by various units of the Pennsylvania Automotive Association, all basically the same, and must be endorsed by seventy per cent of the auto dealers to win consideration in Washington. At the present time 1,005 Pennsylvania dealers have indicated their approval of the code, of a required 2,100. The efforts of the newly formed organization will probably bring many more signers from this territory.

The code was drawn up by 450 representative automobile experts from Eastern Pennsylvania and Delaware, according to Edward Venetian, of Harrisburg, a representative of the Pennsylvania Automotive Association, who explained its provisions to the automobile men last night.

The code goes into all detail in the carrying on of the automotive industry from the hours and wages of labor to methods of appraising used car values to avoid unfair competition. Employees are given the right to organize, and are limited to a forty-hour working week, with the exception of emergency overtime, for which they must be paid at a rate of one-third more than straight time. First-class mechanics must not be paid less than fifty-four cents per hour in towns which fall into the population class of this territory.

The code provides that wages shall not remain at the point at which they are set now, but shall be advanced, as rapidly as possible to the rate which prevailed for the same type of work in 1926.

Because of the complete detail of the code, it will not be enforced directly by the authorities in Washington, but by the local organizations, such as the one formed here.

The local organization will act by federal authority, and the tentative code gives it the right to levy a fine of $200 a day on violators, as long as violations shall exist.

According to the code the expense of administering and enforcing the code must be shared, on a pro rata basis, by everyone to whom it applies. It is for this reason, Mr. Venetian said, those interested should join the group, and participate in drawing up the provisions which will be enforced upon them and for which they must pay, regardless of their affiliation.

Members of the local organization will appoint men to serve on the state board of administration, and the state board shall elect representatives to the federal board.

Mr. Venetian pointed out the fact that if seventy per cent of the automotive industry is not represented as backing the proposed code, federal authorities will discard all propositions, and draw up one as the men at Washington see fit.

CUBA REVOLUTION NEAR CLIMAX

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 11.—The "passive revolution" against President Gerardo Machado which has paralyzed Cuba for a week neared a climax today with the island's population expecting early intervention by the United States.

In the face of many startling rumors, President Machado's opposition appeared strengthened by a break in the general strike. Leaders of street railway and bus works ordered their followers back to work at noon and the outcome of the whole general strike was believed to depend on how many workers would obey their leaders and return to their jobs.

Added to this a reliable source in police headquarters stated the government plans to force transportation of food stuffs from closed wholesale house sources, all of which are keeping their side doors open, although they lock up merchandise with the exception of high priced liquors. This action, if carried out, may aid on combatting the food shortage and widespread hunger in Havana and elsewhere. There were persistent rumors that President Roosevelt had served an ultimatum on the Machado that he resign today under threat of American intervention and there were many variations to these reports. Some of the rumors asserted the Machado had to restore order today or the United States would land Marines on Cuban shores.

MANY SIGN AGREEMENTS

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—More than one-half of the 41,500 copies of the President's blanket re-employment agreement, distributed in this city, have been signed it was reported today by the Department of Commerce here. Officials said this was an unusual record and additional pledges were pouring in hourly. The honor roll, posted in the Federal buildings, lists names of 64,489 employers; 67,253 from Pennsylvania and 1226 from Delaware.

HOSIERY STRIKE SETTLED

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—Settlement of the protracted Reading Hosiery strike by the Pennsylvania National Labor board as a result of which 12,000 workers will return to their jobs today, was hailed as moving the greatest obstacle from the path of the National Recovery machine in Eastern Pennsylvania. Smaller strikes throughout the area, including the cleaners and dyers strike which has paralyzed the industry in Philadelphia, still impeded the progress of the recovery movement but the outlook for the settlement took a decided upturn after the national board, in the space of three hours, effected a truce in the seven weeks old Reading walk out. The board was scheduled to consider the strike of 500 workers in shirt manufacturing plants at its meeting today.

PENNINGTON AND STAFF HAVE NEW APPOINTMENTS

In Newly-Organized Division of Investigation, Department of Justice

109 THUS CARED FOR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—Commander John G. Pennington, former administrator for the tri-state district of the now defunct prohibition bureau and 109 members of his staff, today held appointment in the newly organized division of investigation of the Department of Justice.

As a result of the new line-up, a virtual breakdown in prohibition enforcement in New Jersey was anticipated because the dry-law enforcement was placed in the hands of only eight men, including a deputy administrator in government council and six agents. Reappointments were not extended to 81 employees of the old bureau.

Commander Pennington said he had 75 agents to assign to enforce the prohibition laws in the tri-state district. In Pennsylvania, state and local police were expected to co-operate under the Snyder act; Delaware also has a modified state enforcement law.

ADMITS ABDUCTION

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—John Hoskins, 30, who by his own admission, abducted the two-year old son of his sweetheart in an attempt to regain her love, was captured early today. The kidnapped boy is Francis Fleming, one of three children of Robert Fleming, now serving four to eight years for murder in the county prison. "I love this child as if it were my own," Hoskins told police. "I also love Catherine, the boy's mother. I thought that if I had the child she would come to me and we could make up again."

GASOLINE REDUCTION IS SOUGHT BY DEALERS

To Close Tanks in Doylestown
Section Unless Companies
Meet Demands

"UNFAIR CONDITIONS"

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 11.—What local dealers claim is an unfair condition exists in Doylestown where the motorist pays two cents more per gallon of gasoline than he does in Mechanicsville and other nearby places. The local dealers so far have no control whatsoever over the situation.

Unless the price of gasoline in Doylestown is reduced two cents a gallon to meet the price at which dealers in Philadelphia and outlying districts pay, local tanks will be closed until the oil companies meet the demands of the Doylestown dealers.

A number of local dealers in conference at the offices of the Hayman-Radcliff Motor Company, yesterday declared that they would like it known to people in Doylestown and those from nearby places who buy in Doylestown, that the hands of the local dealers are tied.

Unethical practices of the oil companies are charged by every local dealer. In Philadelphia some weeks ago the companies started to sell gasoline two cents cheaper to the dealers and in turn the consumer was given the two-cent reduction for cash. In time this policy spread out into the suburbs until it has reached places as close as four miles from Doylestown, while the dealers in Doylestown must pay the same price and necessarily cannot give the two-cent reduction.

"We want it understood that Doylestown dealers are not getting more for their gasoline," declared Charles Radcliff, one of the local dealers this morning. "The motorist is paying two cents more at local tanks but we are making just the same amount of profit for we pay two cents per gallon more for the gasoline than the Phila. and nearby dealers pay."

By Saturday the oil companies will either meet the price now charged in Philadelphia and Bucks county points outside of Doylestown, or the companies will have to meet the terms set down by the local dealers, it was declared yesterday. Unless the situation changes this week, all of Doylestown gasoline dealers will organize.

Conard, that of the Marchioness by Adelaide Nelson, while the character of the Gaoler is portrayed by Morton Tecosky. The four who will stage "Hot Lemonade" are: Ben J. Conard, Ellen M. Eaves, Morton Tecosky and John S. Woodrow. The plays will be staged by Clyde Robinson.

Hangs Self in Somerville

TOXOID ADMINISTRATION

Bucks County Society Meets

CHILD HEALTH PROJECT

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 11.—Members of the Bucks County Medical Society, meeting in the Fountain House, here, Wednesday, had as their chief topic for discussion the method of administration of toxoid to children of pre-school and school age throughout the county.

The toxoid, which is to be furnished by the state, requires but two administrations.

The administration of the toxoid will be by the family physician, the parents making their own choice of doctors. This method will supplant the former clinics where children received the preventive treatment for diphtheria. The toxoid will be administered chiefly to children up to 10 years of age.

In cases where families have been receiving aid from welfare organizations, said organizations will determine what children are eligible for free treatment.

The question of "Emergency Child Health" was likewise entered into, in which project children of families receiving aid from welfare groups will be examined in the same manner as the method arranged for the toxoid treatment, i. e. having their own choice of physicians. Report blanks will be provided for the doctors, who will return said reports to the State Department of Health through the local physicians' committee after the examinations are completed. In this manner a check can easily be made on the general health of children whose diets have been considerably changed during the depression period.

The session was presided over by Dr. H. I. Feigley, Quakertown, first vice-president, with secretary Dr. Anthony F. Myers, Blooming Glen, in charge of records.

Hearn Held in $500 Bail
On Charge of A. Arcolesse

A further hearing was held last night in the case of Samuel Hearn, 354 Lafayette street, who on August 3rd is alleged to have driven an automobile in which others were seated and from which were thrown stones and shots fired at the residence of A. Arcolesse, Wood street, near Jefferson avenue.

Hearn was held in $500 bail for court by Justice of Peace James Guy. Mr. Arcolesse testified that he positively identified Hearn at the wheel of the car, saw the license number and in this way identified the car and the owner, who was also Hearn.

The incident occurred between 2:45 and three o'clock on the morning of August 3rd.

Hearn was represented by I. L. Rubin, attorney, who urged the discharge of his client because of insufficient evidence on the charges made.

Justice Guy ruled that as Hearn had been identified as the driver of the car, was the owner of the car and that no evidence had been presented to show that such was not the case, that he therefore held Hearn as being an accessory.

STATES WARNED

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, again has warned the states that unless they do their part the $500,000,000 appropriated by Congress for relief purposes will not last through the coming winter.

Already contributions out of this fund made to states have passed $100,000,000. "The $500,000,000 will be enough to see us through this winter if we can make the states do their share," he said. "If they don't, it won't be enough."

Half of the $500,000,000 total is being allotted states on the basis of one dollar for every three spent by the states for relief purposes in a three-months' period. The balance is distributed by the administrator according to the need and may be allotted as outright gifts.

How great will be the need of unemployment relief this winter cannot be known now. Increasing employment, if it continues, should lighten the loads on relief agencies. There can be little doubt, though, even under the most favorable prospects, that there will be need for considerable help.

It is important that preparations for meeting this be made now. The relief director in reminding states to do their part is taking proper steps. Exhaustion of the Federal fund would cause a serious situation.

NEED FOR LOANS DECLINES

Continued improvement in the condition of the nation's banks remains one of the encouraging features of the general business situation.

Loans made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation supply a standard by which the condition of banks can be measured. The corporation's report covering June shows a decline of nearly 50 per cent in loans made financial institutions compared with the figures for May.

The total of loans in June made to banks and trust companies was $38,847,166, of which $21,474,583 was for the reorganization or liquidation of closed institutions. In May, loans totaled $64,110,259, with $35,850,560 of this amount going to closed institutions.

A large number of banks remained closed, but these are being reopened or liquidated as rapidly as conditions will permit.

The decreasing number of active institutions finding need for Federal assistance indicates that the banking situation generally is in good condition. Fear has been replaced in the mind of the public with justified confidence.

The outlook is bright for those who look out.

SYNOPSIS

At the premiere of her latest motion picture, beautiful Leni Luneska, the star, is embarrassed by the appearance of her husband, Karl Kruger, whom she married in Vienna, when just a child. Years of brutality and unhappiness followed. Finally Kruger was put in prison and Leni came to America where, after a long struggle, she reached stardom in motion pictures. Kruger now seeks recognition as her husband and waits in a private office of the theatre for her to reconsider her refusal. Meanwhile, thieves are robbing the safe in the next office. Lucky Cavanaugh, who met the star that evening and fell in love with her on sight, orders Kruger to leave. A fight ensues. Failing in an attempt to shoot Cavanaugh, Kruger rushes into the next office. The burglars, surprised, kill him. Detective Tom Mulrooney suspects Cavanaugh but, when the latter denies the crime, gives him four days in which to find the murderer among his underworld friends. Cavanaugh is warned by "Slug," one of the robbers, that the gunmen fear he will squeal and so "have you on the spot." At Leni's home, Lucky receives a phone call from a woman, named Annette, who tells him he is not putting anything over on her. Cavanaugh proposes to Leni. Later, he returns home. Steve Poletzki, Kruger's murderer, lies in wait to kill Lucky from ambush.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

At his door he selected the key from one of several on a small silver ring. It was the usual procedure for the Filipino to hear the turning of the lock and be at the door to take Cavanaugh's hat and coat immediately. Tonight, however, the boy was not there.

Cavanaugh put up his own things without attaching any great importance to it. He wondered idly what had become of the boy. Perhaps he had fallen asleep in a kitchen chair and would appear in a moment smiling and apologetic.

Then, suddenly, Cavanaugh stopped dead still in his tracks. His nostrils widened slightly and he breathed in a flower-smelling trace of perfume. His face darkened as he moved with a quick step into his wide living room with its high walls and beamed ceiling.

The woman who had been sitting in a tapestry chair sprang up and stood directly in front of him.

"I thought maybe you'd come home—sooner or later," she said with a half smile, and menace in her voice.

Cavanaugh's eyes hardened.

Through half closed lids he studied this darkly handsome woman with the scarlet mouth and sullen eyes. Her hair was black and lustrous like wrought-iron and drawn back smoothly from the Latin creaminess of her cheeks.

"How did you get in here?"

"Quite easily. Your Filipino let me in. I told him I was expected and that he could come back tomorrow."

It was not going to be easy, Cavanaugh began to realize, to deal with Annette.

He had tried everything—kindness, humor, neglect. It was not a question of money because she had plenty of that, or love either. She had lovers and husbands scattered from Rio de Janeiro to Montreal.

"Exactly what is it you want?" he demanded.

"You!"

"I'm afraid I've gone out of circulation," said Cavanaugh. "You flatter me, Annette, but—" He stopped speaking with a shrug.

Her face was beginning to flush. "Do you know what you have done to me?" she cried, but he cut her short.

"I thought maybe you'd come home—sooner or later," Annette said with a half smile, and menace in her voice.

"Don't be silly! I haven't done anything to you."

"You have set my whole life on fire!" she threw at him, her voice rising. "Am I a plaything to be cast aside for another woman? Is movie star you're running after like a—like a—"

"Cut that out!" commanded Cavanaugh.

The color had left Annette's face and she was beginning to be livid. "So! I am not allowed even to mention her!" she cried, louder than before. "This woman who comes between us! You stand there brazenly and tell me to my face that I have no rights! Because she is a movie star she is better than I am! She's been in your arms tonight! Don't deny it. You don't dare deny it!"

The louder she talked, the lower became Cavanaugh's voice.

"If you realize what a fool you're making of yourself, you'd quiet down," he said. "You're a vain, jealous woman and, if I may add, a very noisy one. You'll probably have a new romance next week and forget that I ever existed."

Poletzki shifted his position on the fire escape and tried to get Cavanaugh in a straight line with the muzzle of his automatic. The trouble was that the woman kept getting in the way.

The automatic was treasured carefully in one of his damp palms. There was no hurry at all. Poletzki was quite content to wait. He was filled with the subtle joy of a hunter waiting for his prey to get into position.

Poletzki knew how to send a straight bullet. He knew he could not miss.

Annette had begun to gesticulate. Her face, contorted with passion, had lost all beauty. Her eyes glinted metallically. The scarlet mouth kept twisting. Human reasoning had toppled from its throne. That hell-fury of a woman scorned consumed all restraint.

Cavanaugh tried in vain to silence her. It was hopeless. He sat down and lit a cigarette.

"If you keep it up you'll make yourself deathly sick," he said helplessly.

Her voice which had been almost a scream dropped to a dry cold level, as deadly vibrant as the flat sound of a rattle.

"You fool!" she said poisonously to Cavanaugh. "What makes you think you can get away with this? I ought to kill you. I ought to take a gun and explode it a dozen times right in your face!"

Cavanaugh's voice was steel. "It would do you good to look at yourself in the mirror."

"So my face doesn't please you any more!" she threw at him. "No—I don't look like a movie star. You don't like my kind of beauty!"

She began to laugh with a derisive clattering in her throat.

"You give me a marvelous idea! I wonder if you would find this Leni Luneska so heavenly to look at—if somebody threw a bottle of vitriol in her face."

Cavanaugh sprang to his feet. His face, suddenly, was pale as death.

"You don't realize what you're saying!" he cried hoarsely.

Her eyes lit with a quick fiendish delight.

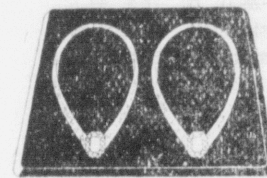

"You believe I'd do it! You begin to realize, eh? You can bet your last dollar I'd do it! What they will do with me afterwards doesn't matter. You think I'm a fiend! Well, perhaps I am."

In the whole of his experience Cavanaugh had never encountered anything like this. It was grotesque, abnormal—a revelation out of bedlam. The whole room was filled with hot quivering waves of hate. His brain began to go dizzy...

On the tray, the two necklaces appear identical. Both seem to have the fire and brilliance of true diamonds; many adjectives could be used in describing them. But the reputable jeweler will tell you that one is genuine... the other, just a cheap imitation.

It Pays to be SURE

IN GASOLINES, as in diamonds, you will sometimes find imitations. Often, you can spot them by the insincere and extravagant claims made by their backers. To get honest values, you should patronize those companies which you know are reliable.

WILLIAM PENN MUTUAL LOAN & BUILDING ASS'N

TULLYTOWN, PENNA.

TO OUR STOCKHOLDERS AND FRIENDS:

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the William Penn Mutual Loan and Building Association will be held on Monday evening, August 21, 1933, at seven o'clock P. M. (Daylight Saving Time), at the office of the association in Tullytown, Pa. At this time we will elect directors and officers for the ensuing year. We will also transact any other business that may come up before the meeting.

A new series opens in August. There will be no extra charge on the shares. If you cannot take out shares in August, you can take them out any month and pay back dues from August.

We will accept one, ten or fifty dollars per month and invest it in first mortgages only on homes in this community. Our last series matured in April and was paid in cash.

Like every other business enterprise dependent upon a wage earning public for support, we have felt the depression—but with the spirit of general confidence and optimism growing steadily day by day. We believe our friends will soon be in position to put aside their monthly savings in one of the safest and best paying investments the country has ever known. Shares maturing in twelve years are still paying from 6 to 6½% on the principal invested. One thousand dollars ($1,000), borrowed on a property and carried by monthly payment over a period of twelve years, figures a payment of $720 as principal, the remaining $280 being interest the money has accumulated.

We are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank, Pennsylvania League of Building and Loan Association, and the United States League.

Your dues are due on the third Monday of each month and can be paid at the Secretary's office, Tullytown, Pa., from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M., and on the following day from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M. at Chas. A. Dougherty's Printing Office, 109 Cedar Street, Bristol, Pa.

CHAMPIONSHIP PLAYOFF
BOOKED FOR TONIGHT

Tonight on the Edgely diamond the playoff for the championship of the second half of the Bristol Twilight League will take place. The two contending clubs are the St. Ann's A. A. and Edgely A. C. The winners of tonight's fray will meet the Hibernians in the first game of the Bristol championship series Sunday afternoon on Sullivan's field.

Last Monday night Edgely and St. Ann's gave a wonderful exhibition of the national pastime on St. Ann's field when the Edgelyites blanked the St. Ann's nine, 3-0. For five innings it was a hurling match between "Pete" Firce, of the winners, and "Charlie" Whyne, of the Saints. Whyne allowed the winners four hits while St. Ann's made but one.

The "Saints" possess heavier hitters than the Edgely team. "Chickie" Fields is the leading clubber with an even .500 for an average. Five other regular players are in the .300 or over class, while Pico and Juno are a few points shy of the .300 mark.

For Edgely, "Eddie" Fields is leading the swatters with a .316 average. Andy Firce has a .440 average but hasn't appeared in enough games to be classed as a regular. "Sid" Purcell finished the first half with a .472 mark. Game will begin at 6.30 o'clock.

JOHNSON GIVES WARNING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—A warning from General Hugh S. Johnson that the recovery program will fail unless the public spends and businesses co-operate, today gave impetus to the nation-wide publicity drive to back firms flying the blue eagle. Although Johnson's aides professed satisfaction with the manner in which the proposed codes are pouring in, the chief of the recovery administration served notice the entire program must be speeded to the limit.

A new and powerful method of bringing employers into the field by authorizing manufacturers to brand articles with the blue eagle insignia, was under consideration.

General Johnson denied the recovery administration is planning a boycott, and urged the public to buy now and provide employers with the money to pay higher wages.

"The only chance of this plan failing," Johnson said, "is the danger that we cannot all get together and do our part. He told his hearers frankly the consumer must pay the bill. Employers, he said, must suffer hardships in some instances, because prices cannot rise as fast as cost, but in the end, the public must pay more for what it gets.

BILL Fine, local right-hand pitcher, is making good in a big way playing for the Ogdensburg, New York, in the Northern League this season. Bill is not only winning games by smart mound-work, he is slapping the old apple for a .363 average.

To date the twenty-three year old Bristol lad has won seven games and lost two and has made such an impression in the northern cities that the scouts are looking him over every time he works.

In a letter home Bill states that he has an offer to go with Montreal in the International League next year and that the New York Yankees scout is trying to arrange for a try-out with the Yankees.

Bill also sent along a number of clippings from the Ogdensburg paper that are very interesting. In a game played on June 18th between Ogdensburg and Huntington, young Fine allowed his opponents only two hits, shutting them out 16-0.

In another home Bill states that he has an offer to go with Montreal in the International League next year and that the New York Yankees scout is trying to arrange for a try-out with the Yankees.

To quote the New York state paper on the Renfrew-Ogdensburg game in which young Fine also won by the score of 4-2, it said: "Playing great ball in support of the excellent pitching of Bill Fine, the newly-acquired fast ball artist, the Ogdensburg Leaguers trounced the Renfrew, Ontario, nine, 4-2, at Winter Park before a large crowd.

"Fine who for the past two years trained with the Phillies at their winter training camp, did not allow the Canadians a single hit until the eighth inning when one run was scored following an error that put one of the visitors on the paths.

"The Bristol boy struck out five men and passed one, while Roach, the Renfrew moundsman, fanned eight and walked three."

Larry David, another Bristol lad, is also playing on the Ogdensburg team and hitting and fielding in great style.

"Ladybirds of a Feather—"

LADYBIRDS WITH HUSBIES. AMELIA EARHART PUTNAM

Among the friends she won in America, Amy Johnson Mollison, half of the famous British aviation team, the "Flying Mollisons," found none with whom she has so much in common as Amelia Earhart Putnam, America's ace ladybirds, the only other woman to cross the Atlantic in an airplane. Although of different types, physically, the aviatrixes have remarkably similar personalities. Both are frank, direct in their attitude and speech and the favorite topic of conversation with both is aviation—"blind flying"—the merits of aero engines, etc. Amy and her equally famous husband, Captain Jimmy, were recently the guests of the Putnams at Atlantic City, N. J., where the ladybirds temporarily jilted the air for the ocean to combat the heat wave.

Fashion Takes Back Seat
As Ladybirds Talk "Shop"

By ALICE DENHOFF.
NEW YORK. —What do famous ladybirds talk about as they skim through the clouds? Why, aviation of course. And it is the one time when talking "shop" with constant references to technical expressions doesn't bore the listener. Especially when the ladybirds are Amelia Earhart, America's greatest woman flyer, and Amy Johnson Mollison, who has just dropped in on us from England, and the party includes Clarence Chamberlain and Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, to whom all flying must seem tame after those war stunts. The talk is all of air pockets, visibility, winds, instruments, "blind" flying and the relative merits of engines.

The occasion for the meeting of these famous figures in aviation was the original party just tendered by Amelia Earhart to the flying Mollisons, Amy and Captain Jim. Miss Earhart just gathered up a party of congenial friends, took two Eastern Air Transport planes and a Stinson and hustled the party down to Atlantic City for lunch and a swim then back in the cool of the evening. An idea that hostesses, who aren't flying enthusiasts, are bound to copy. At least many of those who were guests, including Mrs. Gene Tunney and Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, are going to borrow the idea.

Although they are such different types, there is much that is similar in the personalities of Amy Johnson Mollison and Amelia Earhart Putnam. Both are direct and frank in their attitude and speech. Both know the penalty of the unemphatic quality of fame and both are wise enough to be grateful for admiration and adulation, but both would not miss it if it suddenly ceased. Aviation is their whole existence. That they happen to be two of the important figures in man's desire to conquer distance is their good fortune. That they have won through innumerable obstacles and defied Fate in breath-taking achievements is something that they take for granted.

Amy Johnson with her delicate coloring and lovely roseleaf complexion seems far too frail for any endurance flying. But when one talks with her, one knows that no handicap would ever be allowed to stand in her path. Aviation is her life. As the big Eastern Transport machine zoomed over New Jersey, the former stenographer, her hands still cut from the landing at Bridgeport, Conn., left the party and sat with the pilot. She took a hand at the controls, she spoke with the airport officials by the radio-telephone, and was in the cockpit till the landing at Atlantic City. And the return trip found her doing the same thing.

Both Amelia Earhart and Amy Johnson cannot understand why the coming generation of women should not be able to produce from its ranks women who will attain achievements even greater than theirs. They believe that woman has the nerve, the endurance, the stamina, and certainly the dogged determination to carry her through the most hazardous and arduous flight. And in answer to a questioner who wanted to know whether or not such flying feats would cause women to lose something of their femininity, both women simply smiled. Surely Amelia Earhart Putnam, her lithe figure in a smart sports suit, her famous curly hair, hatless, her small but capable hands flitting a black and silver fan, and Amy Johnson with her blue eyes, golden hair and smart clothes, are in themselves the best answer. It would seem that these qualities that are in themselves the most feminine seem to be part and parcel of the make-up of all the ace lady flyers.

The Mollisons plan to remain here for some time. And then they plan to try that gruelling East-to-West hop again, possibly next year. Twice Jim Mollison, stocky little Scot, has come within eight of achieving his goal. And he is coolly confident, although still swathed in bandages, that his third attempt will be successful. And that plucky Amy Johnson will be at his side, is a foregone conclusion.

Mrs. Cecelia Connell and sons, Cecil and Stephen, Wilmington, Del., have returned home after spending several days with Mrs. Agnes Riggs.

DENVER—(INS)—Colorado mining men and brokers acclaimed the recent silver compact of nine silver producing and consuming nations as a great achievement of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, destined to bring prosperity to the silver mining regions of the West. The compact was made at London after failure of the plan looked certain.

LORDSBURG, N. M.—(INS)—Discovery of a rusty gun barrel and a dirt fortification on the E. J. Woods ranch north of here is puzzling old-timers along the New Mexico border. The gun was one of the early types of flintlocks, four feet long and ornately decorated with brass and silver mountings. Oldest inhabitants failed to recall any occasion for the fortification being in that spot.
